

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to the use of a compound of general formula (I) and the pharmaceutically acceptable salts, racemates or pure enantiomers thereof for the production of a medicament used to treat depression. The substituents are defined as in the description.

